

PHONE A R - FEATURE

People can download the TransPigeon AR app, which syncs to your current place in the story and as the player physically goes to the place that the characters are, in real life, then they can open up the app, and see the characters acting within the real life world, like talking to each other.

Multiple people can sync their phones with a person's playthrough, and as they are in the same place as the characters, in real life, their phones update in real-time, seeing the player move the characters in the world.

There will be certain places within the game's environment that allow this feature, designated areas in game, and in real life.

The player attraction for this feature is that the real life players/observers will get exclusive information about the story that might inspire players to form theories about the secrets that they find, like what happened with Underfall. They will be able to do this by interacting with certain objects from their phone.

If the software and hardware permit it, the phone players/observers, and the PC players will both be able to see each other acting within the world, and/or message each other.
